Notes from the Board of Directors contd.

Environmental Restoration of the Lake Forest Lake and D'Olive/Tiawasee Watershed

Dear Homeowners,

The Lake, which Lake Forest gets its name, is important to all the property owners. It is a "Public Resource" with access available to all. Coupled with the amenities that are planned for the Restored Lake, from recreation sites that offer boat ramps, public piers, covered picnic areas, an outdoor environmental learning facility, canoe and kayak launch facilities to a trophy fishery (including a trophy Florida Largemouth Bass fishery), this restoration will allow the entire community to enjoy the Lake. The Lake's documented positive impact on property values throughout the entire subdivision is valuable to all LFPOA members.

The Lake must be restored to the gem quality recreation and aquatic resource it once was. The current process of rapid loss of capacity (already lost 2/3 of its original volume) will continue to progress through the next 70 years. The damaging sediment flows from 77% of this watershed that is outside the Lake Forest Subdivision. These sediment flows have resulted in a Lake depth that is almost unusable (3 ft average) and are currently flowing into the D'Olive Bay and damaging the Marine Estuary System. We are continuing to lose valuable aquatic wildlife, plants, and many other terrestrial species.

Notes from the Board of Directors contd.

Environmental Restoration of the Lake Forest Lake and D'Olive/Tiawasee Watershed

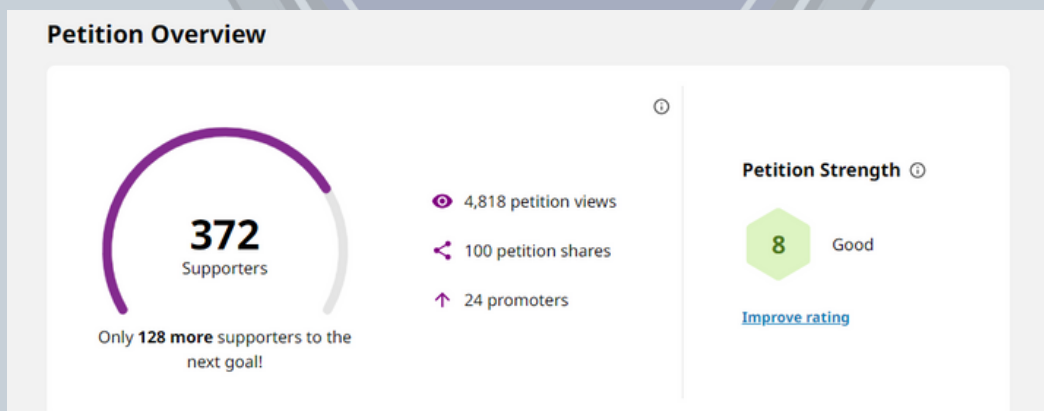

What we are trying to accomplish is funding for environmental restoration from several sources, none of these are LFPOA funds. All the environmental funding sources we are seeking require us to show that the people of Lake Forest are supportive of the restoration. Please consider signing the petition at the following link to show your support.

Also, please know that:

"Signing the petition in no way obligates LFPOA funds to pay for this project" and " the LFPOA Board will not solicit individual contributions from petition signees ".

News from our State House Representative Matt Simpson

It is time to fix the Ethics Laws in Alabama

On Tuesday, April 2, the Alabama House of Representatives will vote on HB227, a bill to address needed reforms to the ethics laws in our state.

I want to set the record straight on this issue and let the public understand what the bill does and why its time to address this issue. According to a report in 2019, there are 300,000 people that directly fall under the ethics laws in our state. By the time you include extended family members, it is estimated that more than 1 million Alabamians can be affected by these laws.

I'm an attorney and I have prosecuted ethics cases in my past - but if our current ethics laws are so poorly written and explained that even I have difficulty understanding them, then what chance do other state employees have in understanding them, people like your children's teachers or your local first responders that keep your community safe?

The major reason I don't understand the laws as they apply currently - the actions and cover of secrecy that the Alabama Ethics Commission is currently operating under confounds and confuses any and all who try to seek its guidance.

The Ethics Commission is required to file an annual report every year, like most businesses or other state agencies. So, on January 24 of this year, they filed their report for the last fiscal year, 2023 ... as well as filing their annual reports for 2022, 2021 and 2020. If any of us tried to turn in required documents at our job almost three years late, we would have already been fired but nothing of consequence has happened to the Ethics Commission for this extreme tardiness.

And this is not the first time they have simply not filed their report on time. It is indicative of a clear pattern of dubious behavior and actions taken under the Commission's current Director. In addition to not filing legally mandated annual reports on time, the Commission has completely changed the way they let people know what is permissible under Alabama law.

In the 7 years under the previous Ethics Director, the Commission averaged 95 informal opinions per year with a high of 147. Informal opinions are private and only the recipient will know how the law is applied in the requested circumstance; formal opinions are published and made public so that other people or groups concerned about similar issues can search through them to see if their ethical question or situation has already been addressed, creating a clear precedent and archive for continued usage.

News from our State House Representative contd. Matt Simpson

Under the current Ethics Director, the Commission has averaged 759 informal opinions per year with a high of 982. This exponential increase has caused concern that the Commission isn't letting the public know what they can and can't do. The Commission gave 3 formal opinions in 2023 and only 2 formal opinions in 2022. How can those who fall under the rules of our ethics laws seek actual guidance and clarity if they have no formal opinions to learn from? How can the public trust rulings from an Ethics Commission when the vast majority of their rulings are secret and could easily change on a whim?

There is also a concern that the Ethics Commission is using the threat of criminal charges as leverage for reaching civil administrative resolutions on their cases. If someone is looking down the barrel of a potential 20-year prison sentence, they would absolutely resolve a matter civilly as opposed to facing prosecution. That is not fair to the public. The Ethics Commission should not be permitted to act as judge, jury, and executioner.

HB227 would set clear lines as to how ethics cases are handled in our state. If someone is facing a prison sentence, that case would be handled by the Attorney General's Office or the local District Attorney. A jury of the people of Alabama would be the decider of their fate, just as it is with other criminal cases throughout our state.

For civil violations, the Ethics Commission would handle the fines and/or administrative resolutions that would not be prison sentences, handing out fines not unlike many other state regulatory agencies and boards.

This bill still allows the bad actors to be sent to prison; they would just have to go through prosecutors and not the Ethics Commission, giving those accused of criminal violations the same due process and legal rights that we have come to expect from our American system of justice.

This bill does not weaken the Ethics Laws in our state - far from it. It makes a clear delineation on how they should be interpreted and handled in order to help people know what is or is not ethical behavior.

This bill is written to make sure that the nearly 25 percent of Alabamians who fall under the Ethics laws in our state have a fair chance to know what they can and cannot do.

This bill does not weaken the Ethics Laws in our state - it just makes the public better aware of where the lines are.

If a bad actor crosses the line, that person will be prosecuted and face prison time.

With the reforms I am proposing in this bill, we now will have the ability to let these decisions be open to public scrutiny - something that we have lacked but sorely needed in Alabama for a long time.

If you have further questions or comments or concerns, reach out to me the same way you always do, which is emailing me at mattsimpsonal96@gmail.com

Garden Club

BY DENISE BARTER

Charlotte Hamm, a master gardener gave a super informative presentation on Landscaping. Just like an artist working on a canvas the same principles apply. Position trees first, shrubs later, and then the blooming perennials and annuals last they are the bling.

You can look at the plant tag or look it up online to check the mature height of each plant idea so that nothing will overhang the roof, reach up to the power lines, or overshadow a plant that is behind.

Linda Crowley won first place with her bougainvillea. The hosts were Patricia Popp, Kathy Schuman, and Mary Taulbee.

April 4th will be the next meeting with a presentation on Ikebana.
